The 2007 State Senior Adult Rally is a perennial favorite among seniors in Baptist churches in Mississippi. This year was no exception.

By Tony Martin Associate Editor

The event, hosted by Mississippi College (MC), Clinton, registered 1,163 participants from 102 churches, representing 64 towns in the state, according to Glenn Shows, consultant in the Discipleship and Family Ministries Department of the Mississippi Baptist Convention Board.

Christian humorist Dennis Swanberg was the big draw, bringing participants from churches as far away as Tupelo, Pontotoc, and Olive Branch, on down to the Jackson area and the Gulf Coast.

As "The Swan" greeted visitors one by one upon their arrival at Nelson Hall, he also was dead serious about his love for MC. It's the Baptist university where his son Dusty is now a senior and another son, Chad, graduated in 2005 with a degree in accounting. Chad works with Swanberg Ministries, based in West Monroe, La.

"Wherever I go, I take MC stuff. It's been so good to my boys," said Swanberg, a Baylor University graduate who grew up a huge fan of Mississippi Baptist and country comedian Jerry Clower. "MC is a great place."

Swanberg brings his impressions of characters like TV's lovable Mayberry deputy Barney Fife to audiences nationwide at 175 events annually. He raved about the crowd of folks, 55-years-old and up, packing MC's Swor Auditorium and spilling over to seats in the aisles and near-by hallways. "I love my seniors," he said.

At the rally, the overflow crowd at the event included folks like Jeris White, 66, a member of Thaxton Church in Pontotoc County. "We love the fellowship of the people," said White, who purchased some Swanberg tapes along the way."The services are so awesome," she says of the church rallies for seniors she's attended in Gatlinburg, Tn., Branson, Mo., and now MC.

It's the senior adults who make the annual time for fellowship so amazing and add so much to churches in their communities every Sunday. "Senior adults are the backbone of churches," Swanberg said.

Others making the trip to the rally included Ridgeland resident Raymond Ball, senior adult minister at Westview Church in Jackson. The church has 150 senior adult members.

His wife Marcia, church pianist Linda Beard, Evelyn Gosa, former president of the Son Lighters senior adult group, were among others from Westview enjoying the rally. So were the dozen on hand from Parkway Church in Tupelo. The list of churches sending delegations seemed endless.

Attendees also heard selections from the Visionaries Choir of First Church in Hattiesburg, and during breakout sessions were entertained by Terry-based juggler and musician Rick Bewley.

Tom Crocker, a consultant with LifeWay Christian Resources in Memphis, discussed the "significance of success" for senior adults.

Dennis Daniels, serving in pastoral care ministries of First Church, Jackson, also led a conference on developing a servant's heart.

A buffet-style luncheon with Swanberg closed out the day.

Miss. CP slips in September

Gifts to the work of the Lord through the Mississippi Cooperative Program (CP) in September were down over the previous month and the same period last year, according to Jim Futral, executive director-treasurer of the Mississippi Baptist Convention Board in Jackson. The September total of $2,282,020, was $1,107,556, or 32.7%, below than the $3,389,576 given last month, and $515,971, or 18.4% lower than the total given in September 2006. Total Mississippi CP giving for the current fiscal year, which runs from January-December, stands at $25,993,535, a rise of $77,731, or .3%, over last year's giving through September, and $1,101,834, or 4.4%, ahead of current budget needs. The 2007 Mississippi CP budget of $33,188,934, was approved by messengers to the 2006 annual meeting of the Mississippi Baptist Convention. A total of $2,765,745 is needed each month to meet the convention board's budget for 2007. In addition to helping support more than 10,700 missionaries in the U.S. and around the world through affiliation with the Southern Baptist Convention, Mississippi CP helps fund such programs as the Accompanist Conference at Brandon Church, Brandon, on October 27, and the Youth Ministers Retreat on November 5-7 at Lake Tiak O'Khata near Louisville.

SBC CP rises for month

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (BP) — Giving to the Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) Cooperative Program (CP) in September was $17,912,692, which was 14.4%, or $2,250,204, above the $15,662,488 given in August, and 2.5%, or $434,776, than the $17,477,916 received in September 2006, according to SBC Executive Committee President and Chief Executive Officer Morris H. Chapman. A total of $205,716,834 was received by the Southern Baptist Convention during the fiscal year from Oct. 1 through Sept. 30 -- up by $5,115,298 from the previous fiscal year's $200,601,536 when Southern Baptists topped the $200 million mark for the first time. Counting an additional $204,996,501 in designated gifts, the fiscal year marked the first time that Southern Baptists surpassed the $400 million mark in overall giving to SBC national causes for spreading the Gospel worldwide. The $4,962,666 in designated gifts received last month is $1,086,262 above the $3,876,404 received in September 2006, an increase of 28%. The Cooperative Program is Southern Baptists' method of supporting missions and ministry efforts of state and regional conventions and the Southern Baptist Convention. It is separate from the Southern Baptist Disaster Relief Fund, of which 100% of monies go to aid the needy in the general public.

EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

t's been several weeks now since comedienne Kathy Griffin had her 15 minutes of fame at the Emmy Awards, where she managed to insult the whole of Christiandom with her offensive remarks about our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. At base, what she said was poor taste at its most poor.

In case you missed the Emmy Awards, here's the direct quote from Griffin as she accepted an Emmy for best reality program for her Bravo Cable network show, My Life

on the D-List:

A lot of people come up here and thank Jesus for this award. I want you to know that no one had less to do with this award than Jesus. * it, Jesus. This award is my god now.

Needless to say, the * notation is a word that cannot be printed in a family newspaper in the context it was used by Griffin. That part of her remarks was edited out of the delayed broadcast that aired on E! cable network, but the uncut version has been widely available on the Internet and cable talk shows like Larry King Live. If you've never heard of Kathy Griffin, you're not alone. A 46-year-old native of the Chicago area, Griffin's career has not exactly set Hollywood on fire. Even the tongue-in-cheek reference in her show's title to being on the "D-

List" refers to her minor standing among show business elites.

Griffin may be better known for her voice work than her minimal acting and comedy careers. She has been the voice in the background for Vaseline Intensive Care commercials and a host of other products, as well as providing character voices on The Simpsons television show and others.

However, Griffin's crowning career achievement, at least in some circles, seems to be her hosting of the annual Gayvn Awards, which recognizes the "best" productions in the field of homosexual adult entertainment. Stripped of its semantic niceties, that means she is involved in the promotion of pornography.

Like many aging stars — or, as in Griffin's case, star wannabes — with careers in free-fall decline, Griffin felt it necessary to say something outrageous in an attempt to move the spotlight on to herself. It worked, if only for a brief time before the American public, ever hungry for new celebrity scandal, moved on.

How sad. Equally as sad, however, was Griffin's flippant defense of her remarks: "Am I the only Catholic left with a sense of humor?"

Does Griffin actually believe she is the one who has been wronged? Like many Hollywood types who consider the space between New York City and Los Angeles to be "flyover country," Griffin probably thinks of heartland Christians as backward, poorly educated fundamentalists who aren't hip enough to understand her off-color attempt at humor. At least, that's the way Christian characters are portrayed to audiences in many Hollywood productions.

Suffice to say, if Griffin had said, "*
it, Muhammad," or "I want you to know that no one had less to do with this award than Buddha," the mainstream news media would have been all over her, calling for her firing from My Life on the D-List and demanding boycotts of her products.

Christians are fair game, however. This whole incident is nothing less than another strong indication of the impact Christians have, and seek to have, on the larger culture. Some people don't like the sound of that. Many Hollywood elites are plainly upset about it. They have targeted us for many years, and will continue to do so for many more years.

May we be strong enough to with-stand their slurs and humiliations, and still keep our focus on Jesus (Matthew 28:18-20). After what He did for us, it's the least we can do in return.

GUEST OPINION:

Our complicit news media

By Kelly Boggs, editor Louisiana Baptist Message Alexandria, La.

Conspicuously absent from the huge gathering in northern California were reporters from euphemism for those that any major news outlet. The indulge in sadomasochism, Associated Press, United Press also known as S&M. These are individuals that enjoy bondage, International, and Reuters whipping, spanking, and other unmentionable perversions. While the Folsom Street Fair News Service apparently were all no shows. Even though the event took place in the Golden does draw a few heterosexual sadomasochists to the event, it is clear from reports that the overwhelming number cele-brating were homosexuals mostly male.

The most detailed report of the event came from Pink News, an organization that describes itself as "Europe's largest gay news service."

American police adopted a distinctly relaxed approach to this year's Folsom Street Fair in San Francisco," Pink News observed, "taking little notice of the hundreds of men baring their genitals on every street corner."

According to Pink News, there were orgies in the street, drawing "laughs and pho-tographs from curious tographs onlookers but no police action." Homosexual men and women walked down the street, completely naked and performing sex acts, the website reported. (Keep in mind the website provided far more detailed descriptions.)

Sounds like a wonderful event, doesn't it? So why did the news media ignore a gathering of 400,000 people? What would cause them to collectively look the other way? Because the Folsom Street Fair is as much a celebration of unbridled homosexual behavior as it is a fetish festival.

If the truth of what took place in the streets of San Francisco on September 30 were broadcast from sea to shining sea, the homosexual rights movement would suffer a significant setback. If grassroots Americans saw homosexuals blatantly flaunting their sexuality in public, they would be appalled.

Make no mistake about it: America's major news organizations are complicit in promoting homosexuality. Hence, they chose to act as if the Folsom Street Fair did not even happen.

Even a bit of controversy did not cause the major news groups (apart from a few conservative talk show hosts) to give the event any attention. This year's Folsom Street Fair official promotional poster featured a parody of Da Vinci's Last Supper with Jesus and his disciples replaced by cos-tumed sadomasochists with sex toys on the table.

Two conservative organizations, Concerned Women for America and the Catholic League, both called attention to the poster. That led to an additional controversy over Miller Brewing Company, one of the fair's major sponsors. While Miller did not pull its money from the event, it did instruct the fair's organizers to remove its logo from the poster.

Even with two major public policy groups calling attention to the event and its promotion, no major news organization, with the exception of Fox News, made any reference to the controversy.

According to Texas Media Watch, a non-partisan and inde-pendent media monitoring project, the most prevalent evi-dence of news bias can be found in the stories a news organization chooses to cover and the ones it chooses to ignore.

Let the infamous and unbiblical Fred Phelps and six of his followers show up to protest anywhere, and it will make the news - but 400,000 people show up at the Folsom Street Fair and the media completely ignores it because they understand it will have a negative impact on the homosexual movement.

Still think there's no media

So. Baptists assisting Peru earthquake victims

ICA, Peru (BP) -- Thousands of people left homeless and of people left homeless and hungry by a massive earth-quake in Peru's desolate southern desert are being helped, thanks to the generosity of Southern Baptists who give to their World Hunger Fund.

At least 519 people were killed and 60,000 homes were destroyed when a quake that registered 8.0 on the Richter scale struck Peru's central coast Aug. 15. The shock wave lev-

Aug. 15. The shock wave leveled most of the buildings in the port city of Pisco, where many structures were built of unreinforced adobe brick.

"The towns of Ica, Pisco, Chincha, Canate were heavily damaged and many smaller communities were destroyed," said Jim Brown, U.S. director for Baptist Global Response, a Southern Baptist international development and relief organization. "The highway from Lima was damaged to the extent that large trucks with relief supplies can't get through. The government had to send the first relief supplies in by air."

first relief supplies in by air."
Villagers will have a hard time recovering from the earth-quake because clearing debris means their crops must go untended, said Rick Miller, who is coordinating Southern Baptist disaster relief efforts in the area.

"I was in a community yesterday and asked what they plan on doing concerning rebuild-ing," Miller said. "Their houses are completely destroyed and they are living in thatched housing or shelters made of scrap plastic and cardboard. They replied that the men are in the fields all day long and don't have time to clean the debris. They need help with debris removal before they can even begin to rebuild their homes."

The unusually strong quake generated international publicity and tons of relief supplies poured into Peru. Much of it, however, reportedly wound up on sale in local markets, while many smaller communities have received little or no assistance, Miller said.

That makes private relief efforts in those communities more critical, said Brown, who traveled to the affected area to assess the needs. He made the trip with South Carolina Baptist Convention disaster relief direc-tor Cliff Satterwhite, who is coordinating the Southern Baptist earthquake relief effort in Peru because of his state's existing relationship with Baptists there.

"We know other groups have been providing relief in certain areas, but it appears that in Ica only Baptists and local Salvation Army volunteers are working," Brown said. "One of our minpartners, Proteccion Cristiana Civil, also sent in an assessment team, looking for areas aid isn't reaching.'

Christian response to the disaster was amazing, Brown said. "Peruvian Baptists and other Christian workers immediately jumped in with both feet to respond," he said. "Volunteers traveled four hours from Lima to get to the scene, and Pepe Flores, the president of Peruvian Baptist Convention, personally traveled to the area, with a part-ner from British Baptist Mission, to see how churches could help.

"The president's visit greatly encouraged the believers in Ica. They have seen a steady stream of volunteers coming to help. It was exciting to see people who care connecting with people in need."

The initial assessment team carried in blankets, food staples, water, plastic sheeting and hygiene kits purchased with a $50,000 emergency allocation from Southern Baptist relief funds. An allocation of $33,726 from the Southern Baptist World Hunger Fund jump started community kitchens in 50 communities cooking operations run by the residents themselves.

Food kits of rice, lentils, noodles and oil sent by Southern Baptists are being supplemented locally with potatoes and chicken or fish, enough to feed 5,000 people for up to two months. Each community food kit provided 500 meals at a cost of $113.

Burma action urged

WASHINGTON (BP) — The U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom (USCIRF) has called on the United States and the United Nations to mount an international effort to hold the Burmese military regime accountable for its violent crackdown on peaceful demonstrations. The bipartisan commission's October 4 written request urged the U.S. government to take the lead by working for condemnations. tion by the U.N. Security Council and Burma's neighbors of the junta's deadly suppression of dissent. Burma also is known as Myanmar. The call by USCIRF came after the regime put down protests in late September by killing some protesters and jailing others. Richard Land, USCIRF's vice chairman and president of the Southern Baptist Ethics & Religious Liberty Commission, urged Americans and others to stand with the Burmese people. "As a member of USCIRF and as an American and a Baptist who believes in soul freedom. I believe it is incumbent on all freedom-laying people dom. I believe it is incumbent on all freedom-loving people to speak out in support of Burmese citizens who are struggling so courageously and speaking out so heroically for the basic freedoms that we so often take for granted," Land said. The State Department has included Burma on its list of "countries of particular concern" (CPC) ever since it began issuing an annual report on international religious freedom.

MEMORIES

Memory is a fascinating thing Some people seem to have a lot more of it than others. Some of you may be like me. My memory is what I use to forget with, but still there are incidents and experiences in life that are so profound and so indelibly imprinted on our brains as well as our emotional makeup that we seem to recall them as though they were yesterday. A worldwide study was done surveying people about their most memorable experience. They asked people what things they remembered more than any other event.

When I heard about the

When I heard about the question, I began to think of the memories in my own memory bank of worldwide events that seem to standout above the others. The first one that came to mind was the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. From there my mind went in about a dozen different directions seemingly all at the same time. The worldwide survey revealed the following three events as the most memorable.

Number one was the fall of the Berlin Wall. I remember that event clearly. I sat up into the early morning hours watching live television of people with picks, axes, shovels, and sticks tearing down the wall as they chanted and cheered.

The second was the first moon landing. I remember sit-ting in our living room after church on a Sunday night and holding our few-weeks-old first child and explaining to her what was taking place as the landing took place and Neil Armstrong stepped out onto the surface of the moon.

The third event was the release of Nelson Mandela from prison after he had spent about a quarter of a century there. In my memory, the buildup of media coverage and commentary was even more vivid.

One of the things of greatest interest to me was that the three top events that caught worldwide attention in people's memory were all good things. I suppose it could be said that they were good things that came out of bad things. When the events happened, they were good news. In today's world where good news seems rarely to be promoted, folks' memory banks want to reach out and hold on to the good things. As they say in the world of communications today, "If it bleeds, it leads." Sadly, you could almost add to that, "If it is worthwhile it ends up on the trash pile."

For just a minute, would you not just delve into your memo-ries of worldwide events, whether good or bad, but would you probe your memory about personal things? Things that, in fact, you have a grasp of in ways that no one else may have a clue. Take a moment and think about all that transpired in and around when you came to know the Savior. Of course, biblical salvation is not doing good things, going to great churches, or even being a part of religious activities as good as they may be. It is a meeting with Jesus. Do you remember when you met Christ? Maybe you were in church at a revival or in Vacation Bible School and someone sat down with you and shared the Good News from heaven. You were told how much God loved you and that He had sent His Only Begotten Son to die for your sins. Do you remember when you invited Him to come into your heart and you asked Him to forgive your sins, you trusted Him, and He saved you?

The reason I am asking you to probe your memory related to that moment in time is because it is the most important moment in life and, in fact, in eternity. I believe you can make a biblical case for the fact that a million years from now if some-one walked up to you in heaven and asked you what is the greatest memory you have of all of the experiences you have ever had you would say, "The day I met Jesus." True there are times and ways that each of us may stray from Him, but He does not let us go. If you know Him, He knows you. Your life is forever secure in His hands.

Paul was approaching the end time of his life when he wrote to Timothy, and he said, "I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed to him until that day" (II Tim. 1:12). From the day he met Jesus on the Damascus Road his memory bank kept in place where he met Jesus, the most significant event of his life. Do you know Him? Spend a moment in meditation contemplating that won-derful encounter and celebrating the confidence you can have in your Savior. Would you take a few more minutes and just probe another part of your spiritual dimension? Pull up your most memorable time of service for the Lord. It may have been an incredible opportunity to share your faith with someone. It could be a block of time where it just seemed as though you moved along in the flow of God's will and experienced His power and presence on a mission trip. It could be that you recall an event in the life of your church when the Lord gave you the privilege of making a significant difference. Now as you think about those events and the joys of experiencing the grace of God at those times put them in the time frame of your life. See where they fit. Look at them closely and evaluate how long it has been since you have experienced something like that. None of us lives every waking moment in the midst of shaking, heartstopping service to Jesus, but if it has been years or decades since you willingly, purposefully, and significantly made decisions and performed acts of service for Jesus you may need to stop and ask Him, "Lord, what would you have me to do now?"

One final memory I would like for you to consider is one you do not possess. You may wonder how you can remember something that has not yet hap-pened. I want you to think for a moment about a day that will come to everyone of us — the day you die. Now you cannot remember the place, circumstances, or the time because it has not yet happened. In fact, you will not control those surrounding events. What I want you to think about is that moment in light of your life and the stewardship of your time, energy, and influence. When that takes place will you be able to say that you have done all that the Lord wanted you to do and you are now ready to go? You do not have to live to be ancient to live with that kind of peace. Jesus was only 33 when He came to the conclusion of His life and earthly ministry. Before dying on the cross, He was able to say, "It is finished."

It was not just His life that was over; it was the accomplishment of what God wanted to do through Him both in His service and in His sacrificial death. It is finished! The Apostle Paul wrote his last letter to Timothy and in the last chapter said, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, Thave kept the faith" (II Tim. 4:7). Indeed he had and with his last breaths saw his life as being poured out like a drink offering that would be liquid, poured out on the ground, and quickly soaked up - but without question he was ready to go. You can be too, and you can live each day with awareness and a commitment to walking with God so that if today holds the last breath you take you will be ready. If you walk with Jesus in that manner, not only will that memory be good for you it will be good for every person who knows you.

Mothers, daughters enjoy time together at Garaywa

Correspondent

Just weeks into a new school year, approximately 200 moms and their first through sixth grade daughters took advantage of an opportunity to escape the daily schedules of life by attending an overnight camping experience on September 21-22 at Camp Garaywa in Clinton.

"Seeing the mothers and daughters together at camp is amazing. Not only can God be seen working in their individual lives, you can see Him bringing mothers and daughters together in a way that can't be done in our busy lifestyles today," said Jennifer Ingram, a 2007 unit leader at Camp Garaywa. "For two days, mothers and daughters can focus on two of the days, mothers and daughters can focus on two of the most important parts of their lives — their relationship with Christ and their relationship with each other."

Happy Birthday, Garaywa, the theme for the mother/daughter weekend, was chosen in honor of Garaywa's 60th birthday. Camp Garaywa.

"Celebrating the birthday of Garaywa means celebrating everything that God has done both on and off the campgrounds, in the lives of children, youth, and adults alike "said Brittany Prevent one of the 2007 adults alike," said Brittany Prevost, one of the 2007 cabin leaders who helped host the weekend. "Garaywa is home to the hearts of so many and to truly take the time to recognize that God is at work is essential in giving God glory for all He has done and will continue to do at Camp Garaywa."

On Friday night, moms and daughters played birthday Bingo and pin the candle on the cake, and decorated cupcakes. Attendees of the weekend then had a time of worship around the campfire, concluding with a round of graham cracker and chocolate treats roasted over the open fire.

The neatest thing about Mother-Daughter weekends is to see moms and daughters worshipping together, playing together and having a quiet time together, said Robin Keels, consultant for the Mississippi Woman's Missionary Union.

"I think it is important for daughters to see their moms spending time with God. I love to watch the moms and daughters have a quiet time together," said Katie Welch, also a 2007 unit leader at camp.

Missionary visits from Chesed Dent, serving in the Pacific Rim, as well as Ellen Truex and her daughter Marianne, also serving in the Pacific Rim, were among the weekend activities.

Too often we make the mistake of thinking that spiritual giants are the only ones who can make a difference in our world. The reality is that sometimes it's the small, innocent voices lifted up in prayer that carry us through. I sharing love with children about missions because their sincerity is so pure. When they say that they are going to pray for you, they mean it," Dent said.

According to Keels, weekends like these serve as an opportunity to put missions in front of Missisperiod. In the midst of learning about and giving to missions, the mothers and daughters also experienced a time of recreation, crafts, and worship.

Practical Principles for Christian Living

A MONTHD PUBLICATION OF THE CHRISTIAN ACTION COMMISSION OF THE MISSISSIPPI BAPTIST CONVENTION • VOLUME 7 • ISSUE 10

Food for Thought

October 14th is World Hunger Day. Offerings designated for world hunger are distributed between the International Mission Board (80%) and the North American Mission Board (20%). The Southern Baptist Convention created the World Hunger Fund to minister to the physical needs of hungry people across the world and to have the opportunity to minister to their spiritual needs as well. On foreign soil, hunger ministry takes the form of disaster relief, emergency rations delivered to people caught by famine, pestilence, or flood. Here in America, the hunger problem is addressed by traditional soup kitchens, block parties, kids clubs, tutoring programs, and Thanksgiving dinners. In 2006, $1.4 million was channeled through 2,200 domestic hunger ministries, according to Sandy Wood of NAMB's ministry and servant evangelism team, all of it spent on food.

All across Mississippi, faith based organizations and others are focusing

All across Mississippi, faith based organizations and others are focusing on alleviating hunger. In Brandon, New Day Food Club is using a creative approach to meet the needs of the hungry. "Help people help each other" is their slogan. Once a month, New Day is a distribution center for units of food. One food unit costs $28 and the October menu is:

(4) 5 oz. Ribeye Steaks, (1) 3 lbs. Breaded Frying Chicken, (1) 2 lbs. Salisbury Steak entrée w/ gravy, (1) 24.5 oz. Supreme Pizza, (1) 2 lb. Chicken Chunks, (1) 24 oz. Pork Roast, (1) 16 oz. Chicken Breast Fajitas, (1) 12 ct. Corn Tortilla, (1) 15 oz. Pork and Beans, (1) 16 oz. Fresh Carrots, (1) 24 oz. Homestyle Hashbrowns, (1) 16 oz. Corn, (1) 16 oz. Bean Soup Mix, (1) 5.5 oz Pancake Mix, (1) 7.5 oz Mac and Cheese, (1) 7 oz. Lasagna Dinner, and (1) Dessert Item.

All of this for only $28. Anyone can buy a unit of food and deliver it to a needy family, a shut-in, a widow, or keep it for themselves. These items would cost between $65-80 at a local grocery store and is the same high quality that one would find at a grocery store. There are no second-hand items, no damaged or out-of-date products, no dented cans without labels, no day-old bread and no fruit that is almost too ripe.

2007 World Hunger Emphasis

For more information on how to start a food distribution ministry like New Day Food Club, call Pastor Mark Howie (601-750-9500) or Ms. Earline Ashley (601-941-6047).

Matthew 7:7-11 (NASB) says, "Ask, and it will be given to you; seek and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. For everyone who asks receives, and he who seeks finds, and to him who knocks it will be opened. Or what man is there among you who, when his son asks for a loaf, will give him a stone? Or, if he asks for a fish, he will not give him a snake, will he? If you then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father who is in heaven give what is good to those who ask Him!"

Southern Baptists have the opportunity to ask, seek, and knock. We ask our heavenly Father to show us where He is working. We seek to alleviate the physical and spiritual suffering of those with whom we share this world. We knock on the doors of others and invite them to share in the blessing of blessing others. In some instances, the non-Christian world is doing a good job at showing compassion to a needy hungry world. If lost people know how to give good gifts to their children, just imagine how much more God has to offer! Will you allow Him to use you to alleviate hunger? Volunteer for a food ministry in your area or give to the Southern Baptist World Hunger Fund. If you feed the belly, the soul often wells up for nourishment, too.

BIBLE STUDIES FOR LIFE

High-Impact Believers

Matthew 5:13-20

By Alice Smith

Jesus is clear about our responsibility as Christians as we live in the world but not part of it. He gives two closely related similes in our Scripture text found in Matthew 5:13-20: salt and light. One of the purposes of salt is to preserve and keep from corruption, and light banishes darkness.

This study reminds me of an occasion when my husband and I went out to dinner. As we took our seats, I glanced over at a couple a few tables away. I remember thinking what an attractive couple they were. She was very stylish, sophisticated you might say. He was very distinguished. Their manner and dress indicated good taste and wealth. And then they did something that should not have seemed so extraordinary. They reached across the table for each other's hands and bowed their heads in a quiet blessing of the food. That cou-ple will never know what an impact they made on me as I witnessed their devotion to God. They were the real salt in that restaurant. They seasoned more than the food — they seasoned my life with their witness of our all-present God. That is what Jesus meant when he said we are to be the "salt of the earth." We are to impact, in a positive way, our society with our testimony of Jesus Christ.

Have you ever been in a very dark room, perhaps during a Christmas worship time? The smothering darkness seems to envelope you. Suddenly, a small candle is lit somewhere in the room and the darkness retreats. Another candle shines and another. Eventually, the room is bright with light and the darkness is pushed away. We are to be like the candle that, with its bright shining light, attacked the darkness.

We destroy the power of sin with the Light of the World.

Verse 13 (HCSB): "You are the salt of the earth. But if the salt should lose its taste, how can it be made salty? It is no longer good for anything but to be thrown out and trampled on by men."

We are to affect the world with our testimony of Jesus and we are to be careful that we do not allow that testimony to become worthless. It is a sad thing when we as Christians experience situations that damage our influence, or perhaps fail (as Peter did when he denied Jesus) to exercise our influence when it is needed. How tragic when we realize that we have become worthless to God's work because we have been guilty of sin or of denying him through our ineffective Christian living. However, as we recognize this state in our own lives, Jesus will forgive us and we must remember that he makes possible "a land of beginning again."

A little salt goes a long way. Some of us must be careful not to over-salt with our Christian influence so that we turn people away. By this I mean that we should always be witnesses of Christ in an atmosphere of love and from an overflow of our recognition of our own unworthiness before Christ and our own need of the daily cleansing of Christ's forgiveness, not from an overflow of self-righteousness and harshness.

In Verses 14 and 16 (HCSB) we read: "You are the light of the world. A city situated on a hill cannot be hidden. (16) In the same way, let your light shine before men, so that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father in heaven.

Yes, we are to shine brightly with the Hope of Christ in the midst of the darkness of sin in our societies today. Those with whom we live - our families, among friends, in the workplace, in our churches, at our parties—must see our lives reflecting Christ's teachings of moral excellence.
Remember that our right living is for the sole purpose of bringing glory to God, not glory to us!!

As we study verses 17-20, we are told point blank by Jesus that he did not come to destroy the Law, but to fulfill it. He said not one tiny, minute thing in the law would be changed. His fulfillment interjected his righteousness into the law. When asked what the greatest commandment was, he rolled them all up into one: Matthew 22:37 (HCSB): "Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind. And he said, in verse 39: The second is like it: Love your neighbor as yourself."

By Michael Smith

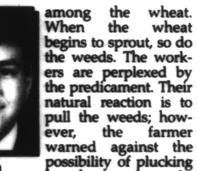

In the well-known poem The Road Less Taken, Robert Frost meditates upon the consequences of the direction one chooses to go in life: "Two roads diverged in a wood, and I — I took the one less traveled by, and that has made all the difference." For Frost, choosing one road over another made all the difference. Robert Frost's notion of two roads is not totally unique. Jesus teaches that there are two roads in life — a broad road that leads to destruction and a narrow road that leads to life (Matthew 7:13-14). Many will take the broad road of rejecting Christ. Few will take the narrow road of following Christ. Those who reject Christ face imminent judgment and condemnation. Those who follow Christ have already received the gift of eternal life and the promise of living eternally in the presence of God. Though the destinies of the ungodly and the godly are quiet different, they will coexist while traversing through the here and now. How should those who have received Christ relate to those who have rejected Christ? Jesus provides the answer to that question in the parable of the wheat and the weeds.

1. Patience Is Essential (Matthew 13:24-30)

Matthew 13 is comprised of a discourse which includes seven parables. The common theme that connects these parables is the two competing responses to the King and his Kingdom. A parable is a story with familiar surface details that conveys a spiritual truth. In the parable of the wheat and the weeds, Jesus tells the story of a farmer who sows seeds in his field. In the cover of darkness, an enemy sabotages his crop by sowing weeds the wheat prematurely. He instructs the workers to patiently wait until the harvest. At that time, the wheat and the weeds would be separated. For now, however, the wheat and the weeds could just grow together. Jesus' parable teaches the principle of patience. Specifically, Jesus' parable illustrates God's sovereign patience towards the ungodly and teaches the princi-ple of faithful living and fruitful patience of the godly towards the ungodly. As followers of Christ, we must patiently walk among those who reject Christ until God brings an end to the here and now. It is important to note, however, that patience does not imply passiveness. Patience is not passive. Patience is proactive. As the heirs of God's promises, we must not passively wait around; we must proactively await Christ's coming. We proactively await Christ's coming when we care for the hurting and share hope with the hopeless.

2. Trust is Necessary (Matthew 13:36-39)

Jesus did not provide an explanation for most of his parables. He fully expected spiritually minded folks to understand the spiritual principles of his para-bles. In this instance, however, Jesus explains the details of his parable. The details of the parable of the wheat and the weeds illuminate the assurance of God's final victory. God's redemptive purposes, accomplished in Jesus, will be fully realized on the Day of Judgment. On that day, God will fully fulfill his promises both to the godly and the ungodly. Those who have rejected Christ will be rejected by Christ, the King and Judge. The righteous-ness of God will be vindicated by the judgment and condemnation of the unrighteous. The assurance of God's final victory should culminate trust. As followers of Christ, we can firmly trust that God's judgment will be just and his timing will be timely. We can and should reserve our judgment of the ungodly and their godless behavior by entrusting the task of Judgment to the righteous Judge. We are unworthy and incapable of judging the evil behavior of the ungodly. Further, our criterion for judging the behavior of the ungodly is flawed. We desire to judge based on what people have done TO us. God will judge based on what people have done WITH Jesus. We should trust God and entrust the judgment of the ungodly to God.

3. Rewards Will Come (Matthew 13:40-43)

You and I must live with a healthy perspective of the Day of Judgment. A healthy perspective of the Day of Judgment is defined by both a joyful heart and a burdened heart. We can and should rejoice in Christ's righteousness and passionately anticipate the precious words, "Well done my good and faithful servant." We should equally grieve over the condemnation of the lost and regret that anyone would hear the words, "Depart from me, for I do not know you."

Smith is pastor of Bethel Church, Monticello.

So. Baptists growing presence among Sikh followers

DELHI, India (BP) — "There is but one god. True is his name, creative his personality and immortal his form. He is without fear, sans enmity, unborn and self-illumined."

This plausibly may sound like worship of the God of Christianity, but then comes these words: "By the Guru's grace he is obtained."

Drawn from the Guru Granth Sahib — the book which Sikhs consider the holy and inspired words of their gurus — this passage is recited regularly by devout Sikhs, and they sing it aloud at their gurdwaras, or temples.

Most Sikhs, however, have never heard about the gift of grace offered to them through the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Jatt Sikhs (pronounced jut SIKS) make up 42.5% of the population of the Indian state of Punjab and are the least evangelized people group among the Punjabis of India.

"When I learned that the Jatts were the largest of the Punjabi-speaking people groups in India and one of the least reached, I got a real burden for them," said Irene Wayne (name changed for security purposes), the Southern Baptist strategy coordinator for the Jatt Sikh people group.

"They are so key to reaching all of the Punjabis of India," she added.

"Prayer has to undergird everything we do," Wayne said. "I view the prayer curporters as a key part of the team supporters as a key part of the team. The intense prayer of the righteous is very powerful" (James 5:16 HCSB).

GATHERING LOSTNESS — Sikh men, easily distinguished by the turbans they wear over their uncut hair, gather at a Sikh temple in Amritsar, India. Southern Baptists are reaching out to Sikh followers in India with the Good News of Jesus Christ. (BP photo)

Christians among this people group already have seen a difference since missions strategists initiated the day of petition and intercession for the Jatt Sikh on the first Wednesday of October two years ago.

Prayer is saturating the hard ground so that the seed of the Word can take root," said Sydney Singh (name changed for security purposes), a Jatt Sikh-background believer. "Prayer supporters are helping us and are part of this whole mission."

"latt" refers to an Indian caste, and the Jatt Sikh people are those who fol-low the Sikh religion. The majority of the 11 million Jatt Sikhs in India live in Punjab, a state in northern India. Traditionally, Jatt Sikhs are farmers and landowners who tend to be influential in their spheres of life.

"They are very hospitable. I've found my jatt Sikh friends to be quite friendly," Wayne said. "It is impossible to know them and not like them.

The Jatt Sikh cultural identity also can act as a barrier to their acceptance of the Gospel. Jatt Sikhs take great pride in their Sikh heritage and traditions and never come to see that Jesus is different from their own gurus, or teachers. They do not understand that He came to die for them. To them, Jesus is a foreign guru.

"Society is so mixed with the culture," Sydney said. "One barrier is the belief that 'Christians are not people like us.' For them, Christianity is so different from their culture.

Wayne said that one friend has told her, "Your way is good for you, and our way is good for us."

"They view Christianity as a foreign religion that has no bearing on them as followers of the Sikh religion," Wayne said.

Sikhism teaches that there is one god. Sikhs follow the teachings of Guru Nanak Dev, the first guru and founder of Sikhism, along with the nine Sikh gurus who followed him, and the Sikh scriptures, the Guru Granth Sahib, which they consider the final and living guru.

Barriers are being overcome as Christians use references to grace in the Sikh scriptures as a bridge into conversations about how Jesus is the way to grace and salvation. Also, Jatt Sikh-background Christians are implementing a "satsang" style of worship that more closely relates to their culture. Satsang, which literally means "true company," is a lecture and reflection style of worship. Someone reads a Bible passage and then the group discusses it.

Along with the prayers of intercessors, these new methods are bringing a growing number of Jatt Sikhs to a saving knowledge or Christ.

"We've really seen more happen over the past couple years since there has been global, focused, intentional prayer for the Jatt Sikhs," Wayne said. Sydney agreed. "Three years back there was no revival of sorts among the Jatt Sikhs, but now people are becoming aware of the Jatt Sikhs and more are working among them, and more Jatt Sikhs are coming to faith," he said. "People are getting to know this people group because they are praying for them."

The need for prayer for the Jatt Sikhs is still great.

"The primary prayer need is for the Jatts to hear and respond to the Good News of Jesus," Wayne said. "Along with this, a real need is prayer for faithful men and women who have come to the Lord to be bold in sharing their story with others, and for more house churches. Also for men of peace who will become the ones sharing and starting new house churches."

Christians building bridges to practitioners of Sihk faith

DELHI, India (BP) — Within the large halls of the gurdwara, the congregation stands or sits together with heads covered and feet bare. Their hands are folded in prayer. They face the Guru Granth Sahib, the Sikh scriptures, and listen as one member recites the congregational prayers.

Every so often, they murmur together in Punjabi, "Waheguru," or er in Punjabi, "Wonderful lord."

"The Guru Granth Sahib is kept in the center on a raised area," explained Irene Wayne (not her real name), the Southern Baptist strategy coordinator for the Jatt Sikh people group in India. "There is a canopy over it, and someone waves a feathered fan over it to keep flies from falling on it and 'contaminating' it."

At the end of the prayers, each member of the congregation bows with his head touching the floor in reverence to the Guru Granth Sahib. The service and with the words of the congregation of the congregation to the congregation to the congregation of the congregation to the congregation of the congregation to ends with the words of the common Sikh greeting, "Sat Sri Akal," which means, "god is truth." To the followers of Sikhism, religion is all about the search for truth. Sikhs believe in one god and that he is the supreme creator and embodiment of truth. To reach god, Sikhs believe a per-son must live a life of intense devotion and self-discipline.

Guru Nanak Dev founded Sikhism in the 15th century. Sikhs revere Guru Nanak, as well as the nine gurus who followed him. They treat the gurus' writings, compiled in a book that Sikhs consider the final and "living guru," as their sacred scripture. They call these

SIKH WORSHIPPERS — Devout Sikhs worship at a Sikh temple, or "gurdwara," where they offer "ardas," or prayers. Sikhs strive to live a pure life that will free them from the cycle of reincarnation. Sikhs consider their holy book, the Guru Granth Sahib, to be one of the gurus they revere in that process. (BP photo) texts the Guru Granth Sahib.

Devout Sikhs will devote part of each day to reciting portions from the Guru Granth Sahib.

"There are set portions of the Sikh scriptures that can be read, and each has to be read in full at one time," Wayne said. "They are kind of like chapters. Some are longer than others."

Sikhs also have special scripture readings on the eve of a significant event in hopes that the Guru Granth Sahib will bless the occasion. For a Sikh, Christianity is a foreign religion and Christ is a foreign guru (teacher). Indian Christians working among the Sikhs, especially the Jatt Sikhs, are beginning to see how much of a barrier this is to reaching them with the Gospel.

Historically, Sikhs who have accepted the Gospel have relinquished much of their culture to join the "Christian" culture.

"Many are completely 'Christianized' and don't look any different from most Christians," Wayne said. "Unfortunately, this is a barrier to the Jatts.

In an effort to reach the Sikh culture for Christ, some Indian Christians have begun conducting church services in the style of a Sikh worship service. These services meet in believer's homes and have all of the characteristics of a church but also have a culturally contextualized style.

The congregation sits with a leader and discusses portions of Scripture

"Some people are now using the satsang style of worship and trying to contextualize more so that they can maintain their culture while forsaking the false beliefs," Wayne said. "Satsan style uses music similar to the Sikh singing. The leader would likely sit rather than stand, and some people are using contextualized terms like 'Sat Guru' (True Teacher) for Jesus."

Satsang, which literally means "true company," is a congregationally led worship. Often one teacher will sit and read a passage from the Bible, and the congregation will meditate on it and discuss it.

In this way, Sikh-background Christians can match their style of worship to the culture to which they are accustomed, while remaining devoted to following and sharing Christ.
